

You're the Psychiatrist

The group was handed a secret quirk chit while you were away. Everyone is following it right now. Figure out what the quirk is.

How to play: Ask anyone a question. Listen to how they answer, not what they say. Something will feel off — that's the quirk. You get 3 guesses, each costs you points so wait until you're sure.

Example quirks (not the actual ones): Everyone thinks they're on a cooking show • Everyone speaks in slow motion • Everyone thinks they're secretly very cold

EXAMPLE QUESTIONS — ASK ANY, IN ANY ORDER

- 01

What did you have for breakfast this morning?

☐
- 02

If you had a surprise day off tomorrow, what would you do?

☐
- 03

How would you explain your job to a 5-year-old?

☐
- 04

What's the most useless meeting you've ever sat through?

☐
- 05

What's one thing nobody on this bus knows about you?

☐

... or ask anything you want — the weirder the better.

Quirk Chits

Hand one chit to the group secretly while the Psychiatrist has headphones in. Everyone must follow it. Cut along the dotted lines.

----- cut along the dotted lines -----

COLOUR

COLOUR Use "yellow" as a descriptor for everything. E.g. "The yellow sky... my yellow mood today..."	COLOUR Every answer must end with a colour. Any colour. But it must be the very last word. Every time.
COLOUR Every sentence must contain at least two different colours — use them naturally in context.	COLOUR Replace every adjective with a colour. "That was a very red moment... very blue really."

ACTION

ACTION Do the full KGF slow hand-stroke-under-the-beard before every single answer. Every one.	ACTION Answer every question as if you just woke up from a very deep sleep. Groggy. Slowly piecing it together.
ACTION Stand up slightly before every answer, then sit back down. Every. Single. Time. No exceptions.

SLANG

SLANG End every sentence with "you know what I mean?" Every one. Don't miss even one.	SLANG Start every sentence with "Bhai, sun..." — even if you're talking to women. Especially then.
SLANG Replace "yes" with "bilkul nahi" and "no" with "haan bilkul." Confidently. Like it makes total sense.	SLANG Add "ji" to the end of every sentence. Even casual ones. Even when it sounds very wrong. Ji.
SLANG Answer every question with another question. Never make a statement. Only questions. Always?	SLANG Slip in "arre yaar" mid-sentence at least once per answer. It doesn't need to make sense. Arre yaar.
